4. Reports from UCML Steering Group

4.a Chair CG

CG amplified her report.

4.a.i She has been involved working with 5 round tables to review landscape of languages in the UK, discussing devolved education, and the situation in England. There will be a workshop in mid Feb to put together recommendations for a combined voice of the devolved nations. They are pushing for a clear set of policies for languages.

4.a.ii The survey & UCML online newsletter: colleagues are invited to review/comment.

4.a.iii University of Hull: our letter was signed by a large number of colleagues; good response so far; liaison continues, including with UCU. Together with CF, CG is developing a toolkit for when a department comes under threat. Action: all colleagues to discuss.

4.a.iv OneHE is a platform bringing together ML communities.
There were no questions.

4.b Vice-chair Languages & intercultural education EP

EP amplified her report.

4.b.i News from UCAS will come out in 10 days.

- 4.b.ii The 'Granularity project', data on JH degrees: we have received a new quote for the data which is substantially higher; we must choose: Action: EP & CSJE to decide which languages to select. Colleagues are invited to give their views on which languages we should use & by what criteria: Action: all; a deadline of 31 Jan was agreed. Meantime CSJE will liaise with UCAS to see if there is a way to get price down without removing languages.
- 4.b.iii Mapping project: UCML, with AULC and Language Acts have published a report on data-collected on different areas of the sector.
- 4.b.iv Re the future of the VC Education role: the new VC starting in July will have a heavy workload - sharing between two would be better, eg by resurrecting the Language Teaching role or by providing support. It was agreed that data-gathering is very important, but that it currently takes a lot of work; also in future the chairing of the Routes sub-committee would be added. Action: SG to discuss at its March meeting.
- 4.b.v OFQUAL decision not to adjust A level grading: the curriculum has improved but exams are still inaccessible. At the Coventry meeting OFQUAL was not 100% positive in response but hopeful. Meantime the GCSE curriculum is going to be revised: OFQUAL are asking for views: UCML will be challenging the expectations that are placed on students. They are not relevant or appropriate for the student population.
- 4.b.vi Colleagues invited to share positive news about languages, so we can publicise it! CG noted that the University of York has opened a new Centre on language pedagogy.

In discussion: OGC noted that the AULC report shows 80% of lang activity is in 20% of langs, & this shows the importance of accurate data. ChB stressed that UCML, as a unifying voice, can make a greater impact than individual lang subject associations [SAs]; CG noted that this point had been made repeatedly in her survey. It was agreed that both have a role, but it was also felt that SAs often do not know what UCML does. Again, it is important for the sector to have a united voice. IN re granularity: GP & HO emphasised the importance of liaising with other subjects, eg history. Returning to the OFQUAL issue, it was felt that the demands on students at school are excessive, with intellectual expression required that they could often not achieve in their own lang; there is then a gap btw this and what they have to do at HEI. Academics should have input when school curricula & exams were decided. This might be a workshop topic at future Plenary: Action: SG & Exec.

It was agreed that UCML is a source of broad information, & that the website should elicit the views of students too.

4.c Vice-chair Research

JP

JP amplified his report.

- 4.c.i AMLUK: CG has attended. We are still not sure where we fit within this association.
- 4.c.ii AHRC letter: we need to continue challenging the monolingual paradigm.

In discussion, CG reminded members that IMLR has some funding available, so colleagues encouraged to get in touch with CD. JP thanks UCML and will continue to attend; CG thanks both JP & EP for their major contribution to UCML.

4.d Vice-chair External Communication & Engagement

AdM

AdM amplified her report.

- 4.d.i The community has come together around Hull: CG's letter had been picked up by BBC in Hull, and on facebook there were many appreciative comments from former students etc. – good mobilisation.
- 4.d.ii The Newsletter is up on the UCML website: this is an opportunity to comment, and also=0 to suggest topics: Action: all.

4.e Hon. Secretary

NS

NS amplified her report.

She thanked the 6 colleagues who are leaving us this year. Colleagues should look at job descriptions and flag any issues. There will be a call for nominations soon.

4.f Hon. Treasurer

OG

OGC amplified her report.

- 4.f.i She now has access to the whole system of subscriptions, it is robust and in place. Travel/hospitality has gone up, but this is well within our possibilities. We are operating at a surplus/within budget.
- 4.f.ii Income has been coming in: the deadline for 2018 subs is today. Subscriptions are still coming in and HEIs can pay for 2 years, which means we will have more coming in now and less later.
- 4.f.iii The SG had decided to offer the nations the opportunity to bid for £300-500 of UCML funding pa. Our net assets are quite high, there are lots of things to do and we could spend this money on initiatives, related to CG's survey. NS suggested that we should pay for an assistant to the VC Education.

5. National reports

5.a Northern Ireland

SB

In the absence of SB her report was accepted without discussion.

5.b Scotland

JC

- 5.b.i Word Wizard (the spelling bee): this had been lost because of administrative resourcing, & because it was not reaching state school pupils any more.
- 5.b.ii National ML Network meeting: the 'Mind the gap' talk by JC was not as well received as would have hoped. He had made the point that Scottish pupils often do one year of languages but not the whole higher, thus having a problematic gap compared to English pupils. This explains the downturn in applications from Scottish students. JC was asked to send his ppt to put up on the website; Action: JC → CSJE.

5.c Wales

LWO

- 5.c.i 2016–18 Evaluation of Routes Cymru: there are systemic barriers to messaging/timetabling.
- 5.c.ii LWO has spoken to colleagues from Bangor/Swansea re funding: perhaps it could go towards an event in Cardiff on recruitment.
- 5.c.iii LWO was pleased to announce that the Welsh assembly is putting an extra £24 million into languages, not just English and Welsh: it is a long term approach. The new curriculum will start from 2022, developing a holistic approach with international languages as core element. Welsh Assembly Minister Kirsty Williams made a strong case for languages.

6. Other UCML activities

6.a UCML's proposed ownership of Routes into Languages

CG

We are developing a transfer of the brand of Routes into UCML: UCML would liaise, oversee and monitor the programme, running a Routes sub-committee to ensure compliance & maintenance of standards. There was a draft Deed of transfer and licensing arrangements. This will be brought to the July 2019 AGM for approval. Action: NS/CSJE to put FW's proposal in post-meeting docs.

6.b Gender in Language learning

AdM

The Gender Action movement is run by KCL, the Institute of Education, the Institute of Physics & UCML; for this year it is supported by the Mayor & GLA. Working with several London schools, they have been signing up, & feedback has been very positive. An inaugural Teachers' Meeting takes place on 9 February. The idea is to fight gender stereotypes in schools (physics: too few girls; langs: too few boys). Some HEIs are developing modules for students to do service (credited) working with schools in small projects around the area of gender: this will start next September & 2018/19 is the year for data collection, to be used nationally later. Social media is going positively.

There were no questions, but AdM was thanked for involving UCML in this.

6.c Outcome of UCML members' survey & proposed Action Plan

CG

CG presented a powerpoint & summarised the response, which was from a broad range of members.

Proposed activities:

- mythbust the idea that languages are difficult and/or not useful;
- support actions like ERASMUS+ with one voice;
- recruitment in lesser-taught languages – eg Russian, Japanese, Portuguese – were particular concerns;
- fear that the smaller departments would be cut out;
- lack of understanding about language programmes by senior leaders;
- clarify the misapprehension that ML at HE is teaching only.

Priorities:

- Widening participation
- lobby government
- career trajectory of students, linking study to career paths
- sustainable projects for smaller languages in a monetary, marketised environment.

Suggestions for addressing issues:

- Who speaks when and where, as the sector spokesperson to provide a unifying voice?
- work with those who are not motivated to do a language;
- role model for the media to put forward a positive brand for languages;
- diverse language programme, constructive supportive environment around languages.

It was agreed to write a ca 800-word blog for public voice of languages for the 'non-convinced', which would be visible within non-languages environments.

UCML's priorities:

- support and cooperation rather than competition, regardless of the language;
- combined programme for HE and beyond;
- we should broaden into eg ESRC, tap into social sciences as well as AH;
- we should be proactive rather than reactive: preempt issues rather than respond to them; and do so quickly;
- we should not view change as decline, but as a global paradigm shift: things are challenging, but this is a time to get ahead of the curve;
- we should now develop an action plan.

In the discussion that followed, GP highlighted the potential of working with schools, eg an Italian teachers' day which attracts 16 teachers each year. This could be replicated for all languages in key regional areas: we should aim to transform the secondary classroom.

CG introduced the Sir Robert Taylor Society (<https://srts.mml.ox.ac.uk/>) conference which 100 people attend: it brings together academics & teachers of ML.

It was noted that there is a lack of understanding within HEIs about how ML operates: ML needs to be clearer about its disciplinary framework, methodology, rationale, impact etc need to be made clearer. Language and culture coming together. NS pointed out that other subjects like English or history ignore that we do what they do, plus langs. Such depts use translations without recognising the linguistic input behind them. In relation to this, PB suggested rebranding ML as global communication, which would avoid negative views of other subjects or self-marginalisation.

It was agreed that UCML ought to communicate the essential place of ML & ML depts to HE management, as well as the importance of the 'ML pipeline'. Again the need for a unified voice was stressed.

SW suggested that in the July 2019 plenary workshop, instead of having presentations etc, we should run breakout sessions to discuss practical actions for UCML: Action: SG & Exec planning July 2019 Plenary.
