Plenary Workshops

MODERN LANGUAGES: THE BIGGER PICTURE

The afternoon session for the July 2021 UCML Plenary will comprise two e-workshops that interrogate the Modern Languages pipeline: from schools to university and beyond.

The first e-workshop will present the findings of the UCML-British Academy UCAS Granularity Report, which has analysed UCAS admissions to modern languages degree programmes at all UK HEIs between 2012 and 2018. The report has been written by consultant and data analyst Peter Webster who will present his findings. This will be followed by responses from Professor Neil Kenny (Oxford) and Professor Janice Carruthers (QUB).

The second e-workshop will look at debates centred on Modern Languages in Schools in the UK, with contributions from Professor Vicky Wright (Southampton) and Professor René Koglbauer (Newcastle), among others.

The afternoon e-workshops are open to representatives of all UCML Member Organisations. There is no expectation that participants attend the whole day. We anticipate that people dip in and out and attend those elements of the day that most interest them.

The event will take place virtually, via Zoom. In order for us to manage capacity, please click here to register for any or all of the events. The deadline for registration is noon on 7 July 2021.
